However, it may sometimes be considered for "off-label" use to prevent altitude sickness in people who may be at risk of developing it.